UNESCO World Cultural Heritage

The Historic Centre of Macao

With a 500 hundred years history, Macau preserves many historical properties. The Historic Centre of Macau, which includes 20+ historic monuments and public squares, was officially listed as a World Heritage Site by UNESCO on 15 July 2005. "The Historic Centre of Macau" is a living representation of the city's historic western settlement, comprising architectural legacies amongst the original urban fabric illustrating the first and most lasting encounter between China and the western world.

The Feast of Na-Tcha and its Parade is one of the most attractive local cultural events. Na-Tcha is a Taoist child god who keeps away the evils and protects people. Not only in Macau, the folk belief of Na-Tcha also exists in many other places in China with a long history. Although the Feast is not a public holiday in Macau, many people will still celebrate it as a main Taoism activity.

This workcamp is organized by Macau New Chinese Youth Association (MNCYA) – an active youth organization in Macau, and it is mainly about traditional culture preservation and cultural heritage promotion, through a series of workshops and participation in the Feast and Parade. Thus, it provides a very good opportunity for our volunteers to join the festival as a cultural event, to get familiar with the Macau World Heritage, experience the unique "East meets west" culture while working along with the local people.
